Cooking Hints

Inez S. Willson, home economist, gives these hints for adding variety in meat cooking:

1. In cooking pork chops, rub skillet first with a cut clove of garlic. This does not give a garlic flavor, but, instead, it gives a faint suspicion of something different which cannot be defined.
2. In preparing a meat loaf, have a slice or two of liver ground with the meat. This adds a delicious flavor.
3. In preparing a bread dressing, dice and brown bacon together with the onion before adding to bread crumbs. Moisten and season the dressing as usual. The bacon and onion browned together add a splendid flavor.
4. In broiling ham, dot with small amount of peanut butter and allow to melt into the ham before serving.

The Herald is fortunate to secure this engagement with Mrs. Abbey as her services are in great demand in the larger cities. Next week she leaves for San Francisco to conduct a big cooking school for the San Francisco Chronicle, leading newspaper of the bay district.

Nina G. Abbey needs no introduction to many local women as they recall her highly interesting programs in the spring of 1935, during which the Torrance Theatre was packed to capacity. This year Mrs. Abbey brings an entirely new program and the added seating capacity of the civic auditorium will enable a greater number to enjoy the sessions. It is planned to use the public address system so that these in the audience may hear every word.

made. No milk dealer or dairy in the district escapes the periodic visit of Mr. Isaacs, who takes samples of their product and brings it to the laboratory where it is tested for a number of things, butter fat content, purity and dilution. No chance of getting away with watered milk here, for the test tubes show inexorably the quality of the raw product. Frequent tests of Torrance water are made, to show the chemical content, and disclose the presence if any of harmful bacteria.

Lab Work Important
Miss Edna Lemon, bacteriologist in charge of the laboratory, gave brief description of the materials and equipment in use and permitted the visitors to look into the microscope to see the strange black organisms which appear, no one knows how or why, in the brain cells of a rabid dog.

The county health center in Torrance, which serves a wide district, is under the direction of Dr. H. C. Smiley, and has about 15 employes on its staff. While in the building the city

Benner Practices His First Aid

Fireman J. J. Benner had an opportunity to practice his first aid training last Sunday when he arrived on the scene of an accident in Los Angeles just after the crash. Three women and a baby were injured, and ambulance attaches were glad to call on Benner who offered his services and helped apply splints and bandages. The baby, strangely enough, was the least seriously injured, with only a cut on its forehead. Among the women were three broken legs and two broken arms, besides other injuries.
